JACK DUNN IS PREPARED FOR LARGE SHOW HONORS

By LOUIS A. DOUGHER.

In searching the country for capable managers of major league teams, Jack Dunn, owner and manager of the Baltimore International League club, seems strangely overlooked. There is hardly a club in either big league that could not use such a capable handler as Jack Dunn.

It is an open secret that new managers are being sought for the Yankees, Indians, and, if Jack Barry is called to service in the navy, for the Red Sox of 1918. The Pittsburgh Pirates are also in the field for a new leader, and so are the St. Louis Cardinals, not to mention the Boston Braves.

But, thus far, Jack Dunn's name has not been seen in connection with any of these snug berths.

tional League club. His home is inf Baltimore, where his friends number well into the thousands. It is probably due largely to civic pride that he has remained at the helm in his own home town, even when things were breaking badly, and he was being criticised by thoughtless fans.

Has Won Pennants. Dunn served his apprenticeship in the big leagues. He played in both the National and American Leagues as a pitcher and an infielder. He was with McGraw's Orioles when American League broke into the

His greatest reputation has been acquired in the International League, where he has won many pennants with his Orioles of other years. Today Larry Lajole, leading the Tool ronto Leafs, admits frankly that he fears Baltimore more than any other club in his fight for the championship,

Dunn always has a fighting ball elub. He won't endure any other type of player on his team. He has type of player on his team. He has a rough tongue, never hesitating a moment when he thinks he should "ride" some balky player. And yet every player with experience under Jack Dunn always has nice things to say of him.

Has Made Much Money.

Jack Dunn's forte seems to be development of young players and then selling them at stiff prices to major league clubs. Generally he has sold his players to Connie Mack, but he made a fat sum of money when he sold Ruth and Shore to the Boston Red Sox and some more when he disposed of Twombly and a couple of others to Cincinnati.

others to Cincinnati.

This season Dunn has cleaned up with the New York Yankees and the Chicago Cubs. Lamar, Thormahlen, and Fewster were sold to the Yankees for $20,000, Ciark Griffith gave him Lamar and Thormahlen for nothing. He picked up Fewster on the lots of Pallimore.

Turney Barber, turned over to Balti-more by Clark Griffith, was sold to the Chicago Cubs for $15,000, and Players Wolter and Zeider, making the nucleus of the 1918 Orioles.

Leading a Tough Job.

Managing a minor league club to a tough job. far tougher than leading a major league outfit. Where a big leaguer is sided by a corps of scouts. the minor leaguer has nothing. Where the major leaguer can retain his players from year to year, the minor leaguer must expect to lose his best man in the draft.

Jack Dunn has apparently preferred to play with a minor league club, for it is with International League clubs that he has always made money. At a baseball meeting in New York two years ago, when the baseball skies were dark and dreary because of the redeat League Dunn told me that. Federal League, Dunn told me that, no matter how things went, he always made money.

"Until the Federal League came into the field I never made less than $70, 000 a year in Baltimore," said Dunn
in that high tenor voice of his.

Place for Jack Dunn. There is a place for Jack Dunn in the big leagues. There is always a the big leagues. There is always a place for a successful manager, even as there is no place for the chronic

Dunn has taken green players and made hig leaguers out of them in a year or two. He did this with Turney Barber, who was a dead busher with the Griffmen, but now a live wire performer on his way to the Cuba. He did this with Babe Ruth, who learned baseball with an industrial school nine in Baltimore. He did this with Fritz Maisel, a boy from the lots of Baltimore.

In these days of "building up a winning team," Jack Dunn stands presuminent among the managers of the Lindley Murray, after three unsuclarger minor leagues. Now all there's left for Sam Crawford to get is the gate. He'll get that about October 4, 1917.

The ancient slugger celebrated a holiday at Navin Field yesterday. The Detroit club gave him $1,200, its share of the gate re ceipts, the Jungle bugs handed him a diamond ring, and some friends from Flint, Mich., presented him with a watch:

LEAVE FOR GOOD Unless the New York Giants wake up rapidly and begin taking their task more seriously, they may be given a rub Unless the New York Giants wake up rapidly and begin down to the finish by Pat Moran's plodding Phils. In the CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Clark Griffith last two weeks the Phillies have gained four and a half took his gang of missits out of town games on the league leaders, and are pursuing a course that last night, and all Chicago was sorry threatens to bring them even closer to the Giants before the curtain falls.

VIRGINIA TO CALL OFF FOOTBALL AND ALL OTHER SPORTS

By BRYAN MORSE.

There will be no football at the University of Virginia this year. Contrary to general reports and advanced theories that Virginia would lottesville institution the game and devote interest to intramural sports. A telegram from Dr. Lefevre reads as follows—"Virginia has suspended intercollegiate football and will devote all energy to the development of intra-mural sports for the benefit of the whole student hody."

Must Also Meet Braves.

The Phillies must also play a big bunch of games with the Boston Braves, who now have the same record as the Giants in their tussies with the Moranmen. And the same explanation goes for the relative standings now. The Braves picked on the slumping Phillies and revenge will be sweet later on.
